Judge Thurman at Lebanon.

A very large crowd greeted Judge Thurman at Lebanon Monday when he spoke at the Court House. The building was crowded to its utmost capacity, and large crowds were at each window trying to hear. The enthusiasm was the greatest that has been seen at any political gathering in Lebanon for a long time. The Judge was at his best and delivered a very forcible and eloquent address, fully covering every issue in the campaign and answering every charge that has been brought against his judicial record.

Honor for Both.

Six days after Dr. Frederick A. Cook discovered the North Pole came the wireless message from Robert E. Peary in the northern seas that he had "mailed the stars and stripes to the North Pole." While there will be some, prone to doubt, who will contend that neither has discovered the much sought spot, yet have the opinions of the most famous Arctic explorers who are most able to judge, correctly that both have been successful, Cook April 21, 1908, and Peary April 6, 1909. As both are Americans and both have planted the American flag at the top of the earth, may we not give to each the credit that is justly his due, without detracting one jot or tittle, from the glory of the other.

The Republicans of Mercer met in mass convention at Harrodsburg, and nominated a full ticket for county officers, as follows: Representative, George W. Robertson; County Judge, D. H. Morgan; County Clerk, D. N. Rue; County Attorney, T. M. Caldwell; Assessor, S. T. Foster; Sheriff, S. T. Caldwell; County Superintendent of Schools, Miss Neva Williams; Jailor, Frank Carey; Coroner, J. B. Stone. The Hon. W. E. Herndon, of Lancaster, was inducted into Circuit Judge's office.

W. H. Morgan the nominee for County Judge is a former Washington county man and is remembered as the man who ran on the Republican ticket for that office against Judge Litsey in 1897.

THE ATLANTIC LINERS

Signs, Signals and Flags Used by the Various Companies.

COLORS OF THE BIG FUNNELS

In Some Cases They Are Very Much Confused. But the Atlantic Line Vessels of the Different Lines Are Quite Distinctive.

It is said that comparatively few of the many thousands of persons that each year traverse the various lines of steamships crossing the Atlantic are familiar with the various distinguishing signs and signals employed by the vessels of the respective companies. Yet it is a very easy thing to tell at a glance to what line any given ship belongs—the American line, for instance.

About all that one must remember in the case of the vessels of our own line is that the funnels are black, each with its white band. When you see an Atlantic liner at night with a light forward, a red light amidships and a light light aft you know at once that she is of the American line.

Our countrymen show a red funnel with black rings and a black top, while the light signals consist of a red light forward, a red light amidships, each throwing out six blue balls.

There are but two of the leading transatlantic lines the ships of which carry down colored funnels—the North German Lloyd and the Holland-American lines. The first employs a perfectly plain funnel without any other color than cream, and the latter shows a cream funnel with a white band and a red light forward and a red light amidships. Signals displayed at night by these lines are, in the case of the North German Lloyd, two blue lights, one forward and one aft, and in the case of the Holland-American line, a green light forward and aft, with a white light under the bridge.

Each of the two funnels of the White Star and the Hamburg-American, the difference between the two being that the funnels are shown a black top, the latter is plain buff throughout. White Star night signals are two green lights shown simultaneously.

Quite a number of lines carry black funnels—the American with a white band, as mentioned above; the Anchor, which is entirely black; the British, with a variegated and fancy touch, the black smoothened being reflected by a white band in the center and a light star in the middle of the white band in the regular service of the Hamburg-American line, as distinguished from the express service, the latter the color is plain black, while the Red Star is black with a white band and a black top.

The Scandinavian-American and the Wilson lines have red and black funnels, black in the first case with a red top, and red funnel with a black top in the second.

The red funnel of the French line has a black top similar to the funnels of other lines, but with different proportions of color. On this line the light signals are a red light forward, a white light amidships and a red light aft, forming the French tri-color.

At night the Anchor line of vessels shows a white light, then a red. The British displays a green light only. The Hamburg-American ships for both service regular and express, show two red-white-blue lights in quick succession at the stern. The Red Star displays three red lights, one forward, one aft and one amidships, all flashed together. The Scandinavian line employs one white, followed by one red-white light, and the Wilson puts out two red lights about sixty feet apart.

It will be observed, from the foregoing that the night signals of all the different lines vary, while the funnels are very similar. The latter, however, does not lead to confusion, for in determining the line to which a vessel belongs one must take into consideration the flag or pennant she flies. Every line, of course, carries a different "house flag" as it is called.

The flag of the Cunard line is red with a golden ball in the center, while that of the White Star vessels is of the same color, but swallowtail in shape and containing a white star. The house flag of the Red Star line is exactly the same as that of the White Star company with the colors reversed—red, white, star.

The flag of the Hamburg-American line is an elaborate affair—white and blue diagonally quartered with a black cross in the center and a red star in the center. The North German Lloyd flag is a handsome one, showing a design of a key and an anchor crossed in it.

Dangers of Handwriting.

A young man is bringing an action against a graphologist, in Paris for substantial damages. A pretty heiress to whom he was engaged to be married, showed a specimen of his handwriting to the graphologist and asked for information. This is the reply she got: "If you should meet the man who wrote these lines, you would find him through life avoid him. He is an egotist and a fool, has a bad temper and a disagreeable nature. The existence of the woman who has the handwriting to marry him will be a Calvary." The marriage has been broken off; hence the action.

Her Usual Remark.

"What did I say when my father gave her that new gold watch?" asked one gladsome girl.

"Oh, the same thing that she always says. She remarked that she was having a perfectly lovely time."—Exchange.

A Good Shot.

SOME FINE FEATURES.

Special Nights at the Kentucky State Fair.

Mr. A. B. Lipecomb, president of the Louisville advertisers club, will be at the head of the special night's program. Mr. Lipecomb is ambitious to make the special night features a greater attraction than at any previous fair and with the addition of the night horse show, which has proved such a popular attraction at all of the leading State Fairs and Hippodrome performances in the pavilion, there is little doubt that his hopes will be realized. Associated with him are the following influential and enterprising gentlemen, each of whom will strive to make his night the best: Prof. E. H. Mark, of the Louisville public schools, who will be chairman Monday night, designed as school children's night; Mr. Louis Seelbach, chairman Tuesday night, which has been named German-American night; John Richardson, president of the Louisville federation of labor, chairman Wednesday night, labor night; Col. W. B. Hadden, commander of the first Kentucky regiment, chairman military night, Thursday night; John J. Barry, chairman Irish-American night, Friday night; J. E. Dorland, chairman farewell night, Saturday night.

Saturday should be an entertaining day to the children, as the Showman pony classes will all be exhibited, and to the general public on account of the horse championships being awarded that day.

MACHINERY EXHIBITS.

Plenty of Space For Such Displays at Kentucky State Fair.

Applications for space in the machinery department are being received daily at the State Fair office. The importance and magnitude of exhibits in this department are growing every year. While the same advantages are not offered to exhibitors as are given by other institutions in the way of machinery halls, there will be plenty of space in one of the most conveniently located parts of the grounds for exhibits of this nature, and every other facility and accommodation will be at their disposal. Among those who have signified their intentions of making displays at the fair this year are manufacturers of engines, pumps, stock scales, fences, mills, road machines, vehicles, harvesting machines, haymaking machines, plows, and everything in the way of modern up-to-date machinery and farming utensils. The farmer who would keep abreast of the times must necessarily be instructed in the use of better methods of farming and the use of improved and labor saving machinery on the farm, and can find up stronger lessons than at an exhibition of this kind.

AN INNOVATION.

Hereford Sale at the Kentucky State Fair.

For the first time at the Kentucky State Fair there will be held a public sale of registered Hereford cattle on Thursday, Sept. 16th, 1909. This sale will be made up of some of the best cattle owned by Kentucky Hereford breeders, and something like fifty head will be offered.

If this sale is a success, as is confidently believed it will be, in the future public sales of other breeds of cattle will probably be held, as well as registered sheep and hogs. Any farmer wanting foundation stock of Herefords would do well to be on hand at this sale, as the cattle will be sold irrespective of price, to the highest bidder.

For catalog, entry blank or other information, write J. W. Newman, Secretary, 320 Paul Jones Building, Louisville, Ky.

Her Choice.

They were sister-in-law and reasonably well disposed toward each other. One was the mother of George, aged six months, and the other was the mother of Marian, aged six months and four days. It was impossible that a slight personal rivalry should be altogether overlooked.

"Marian does not seem to grow very fast," said the mother of George, with a suggestion of commiseration in her tones. "George is much taller" (height being measured in inches).

"Perhaps he is," replied the mother of Marian coldly, "but Marian weighs more."

"Oh, yes," she responded, complacently gazing at herself in a mirror. "But, you see, I have talent."

A Frank Estimate.

To many persons who are not actors the stage seems a delightful and fascinating place. In a book called "The Actress" Louise Clouseau Hall, herself an actress, tells some of her experiences with girls who carry her profession. One day one of them from behind a counter in a shop said: "I should have went on the stage."

"She evidently wanted to talk, and I strove to be interested," says Miss Hall.

"But see how tired I am," I said to her. "I have to work very hard as it is, and I had to work much harder to gain what little recognition I have had."

"Oh, yes," she responded, complacently gazing at herself in a mirror. "But, you see, I have talent."

THE MOON.

Its View! Size No Greater When It is High Than When It is Low.

The artist has to choose between an "artistic truth" and "convention" when he sets out to paint the moon. A three-penny piece fixed at a distance of six feet from the eye negates the end of a horizontal six foot pole, the other end of which is held to press the lower edge of the eye socket, will just cover the disk of either the sun or the moon hanging in the sky. It is an absolute fact that this is true whether the moon (or the sun) be high in the sky or low down near the horizon.

The real "visual truth" of the moon's disk is no greater when it is low than when it is high. No one who regards what I have just said will believe me. Every one thinks that the moon that the disk of the harvest moon or of the setting sun occupies a larger space in the sky when low than when high. This is due to a judgment of mental process and is a very erroneous one. The eye is not at fault, but the curiously untrustworthy mind is.

What, then, is the painter to do? He is to proceed, as the artist paints the low moon or low sun of a sky which commands with scientific fact is religiously exaggerated.—Sir R. H. B. Lancaster in London Echo.

THE CASSOWARY.

A Peculiar Bird That Fits as With its Feathers.

Habits of the cassowary and of the fish hawk are generally known. Their methods of taking fish are very much the same. The cassowary, a large, powerful bird, is found in the swamps and rivers of its own. A well known naturalist witnessed its operations on a river in the island of New Guinea.

He saw a cassowary come down to the water's edge and stand for some minutes apparently watching the water carefully. It then dropped into the river where it was about three feet deep and, partially squatting down, spread its wings out, lowering them, the feathers being spread, and pulled.

The bird remained motionless and kept its eyes closed as if in sleep. It remained in this position for a quarter of an hour, when, suddenly closing its wings and straightening its feathers, it stepped out on the bank. Here it shook itself several times, whereupon a quantity of small fishes fell out of its wings and from amid its feathers. These the bird immediately picked up and swallowed.

The fish had evidently mistaken the feathers for a kind of weed that grew in the water along the banks of the rivers in this island and which much resembles the feathers of the cassowary. The smaller fishes hide in these weeds to avoid the larger ones that prey on them.—Exchange.

FLOATING STORES.

Merchandise Steamers of the Missouri
Lake Country in Ontario.

Among the interesting features of life in the "Missouri" lake country, in Ontario, are the floating stores. A good sized steam vessel fitted out with every imaginable line of merchandise that might be required makes a tour of an assigned chain of lakes over-each week. On a certain day of a certain day the boat is expected at the different resorts and summer homes, and enough merchandise must be bought at each to tide over until the next trip of the floating store.

Upon stepping on board the store-boats, says a writer in Popular Mechanics, the purchaser approaches a counter with scales and cash drawer, as in any other kind of store. Behind the counter are shelves on which are displayed such articles as may tempt the eye. Behind these shelves is the entrance to the storeroom and hold, in which some merchandise is stored.
Each article has its place, and the storekeeper can find it in a moment.

Sometimes, loaded from the lakes are not, when stopping at over-trip, and a fire is down when stores are docking. The store vessel docks at each place when the signal flag is down and some member of the family rows out and secures the purchases.

A machine operating on the principle of the vacuum cleaner is being used to

It has recently been shown that an ifornia from the extreme northern part of India without a pilot.

Mr. Robert Payne and Mrs.
Mary Grigsby were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. G. S.
King. Both are residents of the Booker neighborhood. Mr.
Payne is a prominent farmer, and Mrs. Grigsby is the widow of the late Redmond Grigsby.

The annual meeting of the Central Baptist Association was held at Lebanon Tuesday and Wednesday at the Baptist church. Rev. R. L. Pardon delivered the introductory sermon and Rev. W. E. Williams the annual sermon. A large number from this county have been in attendance each day.

A large number people from the county attended the Bard-stown fair last week. There were many good rings and many fine horses shown but while the exhibitions were splendid seems that they, like most other fairs in the State had a generated attendance from former years.

Miss Margie Graham will open her class in Elocution next week, and respectfully solicits the patronage of those wishing to take a course in elocution.

The Knights of Columbus spent a great day at the Chau-taquua grounds in Lebanon yesterday. A large number from Springfield and the surrounding county were in attendance and report a most enjoyable day.

The ladies of St. Dominic's Catholic church have been very diligent in trying to beautify St.
Dominic's cemetery and their efforts have been crowned with success. Many walks have been made through it and a very handsome iron gate placed at the entrance. The four massive stone pillars at the entry also add materially to the general appearance. Much credit is due them in their worthy work.

Colored Fair.
The Washington County Colored Fair Association will hold its regular annual meeting Thursday Friday and Saturday of next week at the fair grounds.
The officers and directors of the Association are among the best and most intelligent colored citizens of the county and they have entered into the work with interest and the prospects of this being the best colored fair in the history of the Association are good.

Real Estate Deals.
There has been considerable activity in real estate the past week. Mr. Chas. Brady has bought the farm of Mrs. Elizabeth McLaughlin near town for $95 per acre.

Mr. Clem Coenough purchased the farm of Mr. John Collins consisting of 100 acres for $75 per acre.

Mr. Robert Thompson purchased the farms of Mr. J. R.
Durrett and Mr. J. P. Wilkin in the Pleasant Grove neighborhood for $65 per acre.

Children's Fair.
Today has been anxiously looked forward to by the young people of the county, as it is the day on which the Juvenile Fair will hold its annual meeting.
There will be close competition in several of the rings, as the younger set have been making special preparations for it. In former years it has attracted considerable attention and all those who attended spent a very enjoyable day. A large number of children and older people will attend today.

Miss Rubel's Entertainment.
A very delightful entertainment was given at the Opera House on last Thursday evening by Miss Edith Rubel and Mr.
Karl Schmitt. The audience was a very small but very appreciative one. All the selections were delightfully rendered, and it is to be regretted that more people did not take advantage of the rare musical treat offered them.

Horse Killed on Pavement.
Mr. Ed Dowling had the misfortune to lose a very valuable horse Monday. While riding through town on last Saturday his horse, which was a young animal, became stubborn and pulled into the lively stable of Wharton & Tapp. He tried to force the animal out and had reached the pavement when it slipped on the concrete and both horse and rider went down. Mr.
Dowling was uninjured but the horse was so badly injured by the fall that it died Monday.

New Millinery.
Miss Ellen Wathen and Miss Eddie Shader have opened a new up-to-date millinery over Jas. J. Graves' Jewelry Store.
They have a very complete line of fine millinery and invite every body to come in and take a look at their stock. Both are very deserving young ladies and will doubtless succeed.

Harry Shultz Hurt.
Mr. Harry Shultz, the local twirler, had a very painful accident to befall him on last Friday evening on the 7 o'clock train, while returning from the Bardstown Fair. The train had nearly reached Springfield and Harry and a number of other boys were on the rear platform.
Harry was standing on the steps and in some way his foot struck a sharp plank in passing through a cow gap. He received a large gash on the side of his foot, which required several stitches.
The wound while quite painful is not regarded as serious as it is only a flesh wound, and no bones broken. The injury will be a well regretted, especially by the baseball fans, as Harry had been engaged to pitch several important games. And as this season is nearly closed he will probably not be able to pitch any more this season.

Stanfield-Yankee.
A wedding that was something of a surprise happened on last Monday when Miss Fannie Stanfield and Mr. M. C. Yankee were joined in wedlock at the home of Mr. R. C. Canary. Miss Stanfield had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Canary for several days and they had been left in ignorance of the fact that the wedding was to happen until Mr.
Yankee was in the house.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Williams at 9 a.m.
Mr. Yankee is a son of Mr. Lud Yankee, of Sums, and Miss Stanfield is a daughter of Mr.
D. C. Stanfield, of Hardins County. Both are well known young people and have the good wishes of many friends.

A Card of Thanks.
We desire to thank the friends and relatives who were so kind and sympathetic during the illness and death of our little daughter.
Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kimberlin.
